REYNOLDS POINT.
Rev. Mr. Deese delivered a very excellent sermon to a large audience. The latter, the mischief-maker one who had rather speak evil of his neighbor than good were well illustrated. The community has long felt the need of such a man and an effort will be made to hire him a part of the time this year.

Not for Fishing.
A fish pole over his
for was going up Cass avenue yesterday when a stranger called out:
"Give us your luck."
The fisherman replied:
"I am not fishing."
The stranger asked:
"Why not?"
The fisherman replied:
"I am not fishing."
The stranger asked:
"Why not?"
The fisherman replied:
"I am not fishing."

temus Ward's Last "Goak."

ph Jefferson in his autobiography August Century, relates what was his last jest of Artemus Ward. in the famous wit lay dying in assumption he was tended by his domestic, "Tom Robertson, the English boy," who was also a friend of him.

Just before Ward's death," writes Mr.
Robertson, "Robertson poured out some wine in a glass and offered it to his master. Said Ward, 'My dear Tom, I can't take any more of that stuff.'
"Come, come," said Robertson, urging him to swallow the precious drug;
"It's a dear fellow. You may say You know I would do anything for you."
"Well you," said Ward, feebly lung out his hand to grasp his boy's fingers for the last time.
"Why indeed," said Robertson.
"When you take it," said Ward. The last passed away but a few hours later."

FACT AND FANCY.
is a fact that in these days of sharp criticism, imitations far outnumber, their swiftness far outstrip the real thing.
People often fancy they are getting into this life when really they are deceived with "fancy" goods. "This always to seek the true and good, and shun all sham." This applies to all kinds of merchandise, and one gets the most economical when they purchase soap.
